Panel: Role of Development Partners in a Changing South Asia

The focus of this panel will be on strengthening partnerships with development organisations for regional co-operation and looking at how such efforts can bring sector-specific, inclusive and sustainable gains for countries in Central and South Asia. It will highlight partnership dynamics, gaps that development organisations, national governments and civil society can bridge; and the participation of development partners and their interventions at the policy and practice level. The panel will also explore how development partners may engage with the private sector for promoting trade, investment and energy co-operation in the region.
